MUSIC DIRECTOR'S MESSAGE

For several years now we've taken great pride in the thematic programming concepts developed for Esprit's annual concert series. Through our events we've been able to reveal the versatile talents of our composers and musicians and we've been able to provide a truly varied profile on what is currently taking place in composition world-wide.

This season's concerts are more distinctly different from each other than ever, with each programme offering a specialized world of sonic and cultural references.

Several of our outstanding guest soloists will be performing on electric instruments. Even the ancient Chinese stringed instrument, the erhu, will be amplified and receive special electronic treatment. We're also fortunate in having one of the world's finest sopranos, Paris-based Canadian Donna Brown, joining us.

To top things off we'll enhance our last concert of the season by featuring performers specializing in traditional Asian music.

Our repertoire and performers will provide excellent resource material for Esprit's burgeoning education programme Toward a Living Art and our popular Coffee Chats.

As Esprit's Music Director, and speaking on behalf of Esprit's Board of Directors and musicians, I invite you to join us this season for very special and exciting events which we feel will leave your musical appetite both satisfied and whetted for further adventure.

A Versatile Criss-Crossing of Musical Worlds

Diverse realms of musical language converge in this programme of jazz influenced compositions.

Montreal composer/guitarist Tim Brady performs in his own concerto which serves as a confrontation and reconciliation of two technologies: the 19th century technological ideal of "loud" music – the symphony orchestra – and the 20th century ideal of "loud" music – the electric guitar.

In his stylistically varied and imaginatively orchestrated Chamber Symphony, John Adams has moved well beyond his minimalist roots and created a watershed work which has been scorching the pavement in performances from San Francisco to Prague.

Esprit's Music Director Alex Pauk will lead the combined forces of a jazz/rock group and Esprit in his stream of consciousness exploration of musical edges where European, North American and South American music touch.

Marius Constant's virtuosic jazz horn concerto reveals yet another dimension from the masterful composer of works as diverse as Nana Symphony and the theme for TV's "Twilight Zone."

100% Canadian and Brand New

This kind of programme does not occur very often – the music is 100% Canadian and brand new with all five works commissioned by Esprit being given their world premieres. The pieces reflect a varied palette of styles and provide a unique snapshot of current music in Canada. A special feature on the programme will be Adele Armin's performance on the RAAD electric violin – an instrument capable of producing an incredible variety of cutting edge string sounds.

Exotic, Ecstatic and Entrancing!

A feast for the ears, this programme explores how cultural ideas from East and West have cross-pollinated through music. Upon entering the lobby prior to the concert, the audience will be bathed in the beautiful sound of Indonesian gamelan music. The concert will feature settings of traditional and contemporary Chinese music for erhu, an ancient Chinese stringed instrument, along with Canadian compositions which use Indonesian musical source materials.

This multi-faceted evening will be highlighted by a performance of Gitanjali, R. Murray Schafer's setting-to-music of five of Rabindranath Tagore's ecstatic poems from the collection of the same name, for which the Indian poet was awarded the 1913 Nobel prize for literature.
